Arpeggios

Sliding Arpeggio Exercises for Guitar

Preface

What's a glissando?

Glissando is a musical term that describes a continuous glide between two notes. Essentially, it's a slide. Sometimes, the term portamento is used to describe a specific type of slide in which discrete pitches are filled in during the course of the slide. In other words, it's the difference between sliding along a string on a violin and a string on a guitar. A violin, containing no frets, will produce a continuous slide in pitch, whereas a guitar will slide in discrete half steps. So, technically, a fretted guitar is incapable of executing a glissando by sliding along a string, but the terms glissando and portamento are often conflated in their usage.

What's in this book?

Inspired by a texture I often employ in my own composing and improvising, the exercises contained in this book are intended to thoroughly explore the execution of arpeggios on the guitar primarily through sliding between successive notes along single strings.

Each begins on the 6th string with the lowest note of the outlined harmony available on the guitar, be it the root, third, fifth, or seventh, and slides up along that string to the next highest note in the chord. The next note is then played on the 5th string, skipping a note in the chord, and proceeding from there. For example, if the very first note is the root on the 6th string, it will slide to the third on the 6th string, then skip up to the seventh on the 5th string, which will slide up to the root. Then it will skip back down to the fifth on the 6th string, slide up to the seventh, and so on, always skipping a note in the chord each time a string is crossed.

In exploring such a texture, it is important to choose an efficient left-hand fingering, as there will frequently be moments when you find yourself using a finger that is disadvantageous for proceeding further through the passage. Ideally, the positional "one-finger-per-fret" approach should be applied, but it simply does not work in all cases, and fingering adjustments need to be made to set up the fingers for whatever comes next. I have included what I find to be the best fingering in each exercise, and have indicated moments where the fingering is adjusted from what may be your first instinct with an asterisk symbol. At these moments, you may need to reach with the indicated finger, you may need to contract your fingers closer together, or you may need to make a quick position shift. Some moments even require descending slur (pull-off) instead of a descending glissando (slide).

All varieties of seventh chord are included here, and are organized in clockwise circle-of-fifths order.

An asterisk indicates a fingering adjustment as mentioned above. Fingerings are indicated on the top staff with numbers 1, 2, 3, and 4, signifying index, middle, ring, and pinky, respectively. A straight line between notes indicates a slide. A curved line between notes indicates a slur (as in, only pluck the first note of the pair). Take note that some pairs of notes will not include a straight line, meaning they should be played as a pull-off.

These exercises are intended to be an outside-the-box study of arpeggio execution on the guitar. They are quite challenging for a number of reasons, and I feel that exclusively using this texture in extended passages like I've laid out here is unrealistic for real music-making. However, I fully expect that you will discover small runs of notes within the exercises that will resonate with you, and will make their way into your vocabulary. Pay attention to the fingerings, and have fun with them!

G maj7

The image displays a musical score for the G major 7th chord (G maj7). It is organized into two systems, each containing a standard musical staff and a guitar tablature (TAB) staff. The first system covers measures 1 through 4, while the second system covers measures 5 through 8. The standard notation uses a treble clef and a key signature of one sharp (F#). Fingerings are indicated by numbers 1-4 above the notes. Accents are marked with an asterisk (*) above the notes in measures 2, 4, and 6. The guitar tablature shows fret numbers (e.g., 2, 3, 5, 9, 7, 10, 14, 15, 17, 16, 12, 9, 5, 2, 4, 5, 7, 11, 9, 12, 12, 16, 16, 17, 19, 16) and includes slurs and bends. The second system continues the progression, ending with a double bar line in measure 8.

G^b maj7

The image displays a musical score for the G^b major 7th chord. It is organized into two systems, each containing a standard notation staff and a guitar tablature (TAB) staff. The first system shows a complex melodic line in the standard notation staff, featuring various fingerings (1, 2, 3, 4) and articulations (accents, slurs). The corresponding TAB staff shows the fret positions (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18) and the string numbers (1-6). The second system continues the melodic line, also with fingerings and articulations, and the TAB staff shows the fret positions (18, 14, 11, 10, 11, 7, 6, 3, 6, 7, 9, 13, 11, 14, 14, 14). The key signature is one flat (Bb), and the time signature is 4/4.

D^bmaj7

The image displays a musical score for a guitar piece in the key of D^bmajor (D^bmaj7). It consists of two systems, each with a standard musical staff and a corresponding TAB (Tuning Arithmetic) staff. The first system contains two measures of music. The second system contains two measures, with the first measure marked with an asterisk (*). The TAB notation uses numbers 1-4 for frets and slash notation (e.g., 10/6, 4/3) to indicate specific fret positions and string changes. The standard notation includes notes with stems, beams, and fingerings (1-4) to guide the player.

A_bmaj7

The image shows a musical score for the A_bmaj7 chord. It consists of two systems of music. The first system has a treble staff with a melody and a guitar TAB staff below it. The melody includes slurs, ties, and fingerings (1-4). The TAB staff shows fret numbers and fingerings. The second system continues the melody and TAB. The key signature has one flat (B-flat).
